What to Expect

You will have the opportunity to:

- experience agricultural production and marketing programs, and visit agro-industrial and agro-tourism operations
- integrate with the local 4-H club and community and take part in activities that focus on food safety, dietary education, environmental protection, and sustainable agriculture
- experience the way of life in Taiwan, including the work, the people, and the culture

Tip: Expect heat! Delegates say that the temperature was much warmer it was then they thought it would be!

Tip: Commit to studying a bit of Mandarin before raveling. You don't need it, but you'll have a better time if you do. Most families have one or more members who speak some English.

Quick Facts

- Taiwan has a population of over 23 million—all on an Island that could fit in most of the Great Lakes!
- Taiwan is also known as "Formosa" meaning "beautiful island."
- There are more than 800,000 agricultural households, with an average of just one hectare of land each—too small for efficient agricultural production.
